Argo St George Arranges £2m Venture Capital for Ardenham Energy

UK growth investor Bridges Ventures has made a £2m investment in Ardenham Energy, a developer and installer of renewable energy projects in homes, farms and businesses. The capital will go towards funding the company's expansion across the UK.

This investment has been made through the Bridges Venture Funds and is their fifth investment within the environmental space.

Harry Shepherd-Cross, co-founder and director of Ardenham Energy, commented, "Argo St George did an exceptional job in negotiating this funding and we believe that it puts us in an unusually strong position in the sector."

Argo St George Partner Daniel Geoghegan added, "We were delighted to secure institutional investment from an investor of Bridges Ventures' calibre and experience, consolidating the two highly successful rounds of EIS funding that we arranged earlier in the year from our networks."

Guy Burnell, Partner at Argo St George, joined the company's board in April to support the company's funding and growth strategy.
